

“Local” Roundtable Participants:

Carl Baar, Professor (Emeritus), Brock University, Adjunct Professor, Department of Political Science, York University, Ph.D. University of Chicago.

baar@yorku.ca

Baar has for over 40 years specialized in the field of judicial administration. In the process, he has written or coauthored 5 books and monographs, 25 technical reports, and over 80 refereed articles, book chapters and professional articles.

After taking early retirement in 2000, he began a new career as an international rule-of-law and caseload management consultant in Asia, Africa, Eastern Europe and the Caribbean, taking him to Peshawar, Pakistan, the week before 9/11 and Karachi while Daniel Pearl was held captive there.

Baar's brush with Canadian adversarial legalism occurred in 1990 when the Supreme Court of Canada applied his research on court delay to Regina v. Askov, resulting in the dismissal of over 51,000 criminal charges within the next year and the creation of a new verb still heard in the criminal courts today.

Ran Hirschl, Professor, Political Science and Law, University of Toronto; LLB, Tel-Aviv University, Israel; PhD, Yale University.

ran.hirschl@utoronto.ca

<http://www.law.utoronto.ca/faculty/hirschl/>

Professor Hirschl is a senior Canada Research Chair in Constitutionalism and Democracy at the University of Toronto. He is the author of Towards Juristocracy: The Origins and Consequences of the New Constitutionalism (Harvard University Press, 2004 & 2007), and Constitutional Theocracy (Harvard University Press, 2010), as well as numerous articles and book chapters on comparative constitutional law and politics and the study of comparative legal traditions and institutions more generally. His article "The Nordic Counter-Narrative: Democracy, Human Development and Judicial Review" will be published in I-CON International Journal of Constitutional Law in 2011. He has been a Fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences (Stanford), a Fulbright Scholar, and a Fellow at Princeton University's Program in Law and Public Affairs. Most recently, he was appointed Global Faculty member at NYU Law School, served as the Jeremiah Smith, Jr. Visiting Professor of Law at Harvard Law School, received a University of Toronto Outstanding Teaching Award, and delivered the 2010 Annual Lecture in Law and Society at Oxford University.

Lesley Jacobs, Professor, Department of Social Science (Law and Society Program) & Political Science, Director, York Centre for Public Policy & Law, York University; DPhil, University of Oxford (also: introduction of keynote).

jacobs@yorku.ca

<http://ycppl.osgoode.yorku.ca/directorycppl.html>

His research interests include comparative public policy, empirical social-legal research, courts and social policy, and health and human rights. He furthermore focuses on intersections between international human rights and trade law, and theoretical work on social justice.

Professor Jacobs' recent articles include: "Privacy Rights Mobilization Among Marginal Groups in Canada: Fulfilling the Mandate of PIPEDA" (March 2011), for the Office of the Privacy Commissioner of Canada; "Strengthening Access to Justice: Canada Country Report, Vance Center for International Justice, New York Bar (March 2011), (with Kaitlyn Matulewicz), "Protecting Privacy Rights in the Emerging Digital Economy: Canada's Regulatory Scheme, Its Adaptability, and Its Future" (December 2010), for the Industry Canada/SSHRC Presidential Initiative on the Emerging Digital Economy; "Canada's System of Regionally Extended and Differentiated Employment Insurance Benefits: An Equal Employment Opportunities Approach" (October 2010), for the Employment Insurance Task Force; Keith Banting, Chair (with Lorne Foster), "Shared Citizenship as the Context for Competing Human Rights Claims: Towards a Social Policy Framework," Canadian Diversity, vol. X (Summer 2010), 10-14; "Equality, Adequacy and Stakes Fairness: Retrieving the Equal Opportunities in Education Approach", Theory and Research in Education, 8.3 (November 2010), 1-20; "CHINA PAPERS No. 12: China's Capacity to Respond to the H1N1 Pandemic Alert and Future Global Public Health Crises: A Policy Window For Canada" (Toronto: Canadian International Council, June 2010), (with Brenda Jacobs); "Multidisciplinary Paths to Family Justice: Professional Challenges and Promising Practices" (Toronto, Law Commission of Ontario, June 2010); "Mapping the Legal Consciousness of First Nations Voters: Understanding Voting Rights Mobilization", (in English and French) (Ottawa, Elections Canada, May 2009), reprinted in Julie Peters and Jerry White, editors, Aboriginal Policy and Research in Canada (Toronto: Thompson Educational, Jan 2011).

Ron Levi, George Ignatieff Chair of Peace and Conflict Studies, Associate Professor, Criminology and Sociolegal Studies, University of Toronto; BCL and LLB McGill University; LLM and SJD, University of Toronto.

ron.levi@utoronto.ca

<http://individual.utoronto.ca/ronlevi/>

Professor Levi's research focuses on the sociology of state power, law and internationalization and global justice. His current research focuses on: how the fields of international criminal law, human rights, and international development have changed over the past several decades, with an emphasis on legal and institutional responses to mass atrocities; how urban and criminal justice policies reflect the politics of modern states (such as neoliberalism); and immigration and transnational experiences of legality, crime, citizenship, and the state, including their effects for social inclusion and well-being.

Professor Levi is a Fellow in the Successful Societies Program of the Canadian Institute for Advanced Research. Professor Levi's recent work includes "Lawyers, Humanitarian Emergencies, and the Politics of Large Numbers" (with John Hagan) to the collection on Lawyers and the Construction of Transnational Justice (edited by Y. Dezalay & B. Garth. New York: Routledge, forthcoming), and "Médiation et droit pénal international: Le façonnage des outils de poursuite des crimes de guerre" (with Heather Schoenfeld) in Volume 174 of Actes de la recherche en sciences sociales.

Miriam Smith, Professor, Law & Society, Department of Social Sciences, York University (moderator)

mcsmith@yorku.ca
<http://www.yorku.ca/mcsmith/>

Professor Smith's research interests include Canadian and comparative politics, public policy, public law and social movements. Among other works, she is the author of Political Institutions and Lesbian and Gay Rights in the United States and Canada (Routledge 2008) and co-editor with Michael Orsini of Critical Policy Studies (UBC Press 2008).